It was a somewhat peculiar game that the Glants piayed with the oliers in the parallelogram of a ball field, a ball park with a left field a mile deep and a right field shorter than the left field in Boston. One home run was among the day's in-crement, Merkle sending the ball far over the left fielder's head.

Beaumont players reached first base sel-dom off the rock ribbed pitching of Ames and Wiltse and the New York infielders all but stagnated waiting for chances. Ames struck out nine men in his five in-nings and held Beaumont to one hit. The Giants after the third inning saw first base about as infrequently as did Beaumont. The Giants concentrated all their attack in the first two sessions Larson then steadled and held them down a spitball flinger, with a long deliberate swing, who whether he anointed the ball or not had the Giants throwing away their bats. They could not find him at all, and not a hit was made off him during his four innings. The only Giant who arrived at first on Peaster was Devore through the medium of an error. Merkle made a near hit and would have singled on a tap in front of plate if he had not run into his

PENN PEPPERS POOR PIEPER.

Ragged Fielding and Twirler's Wildness Help Swell Score.

BALTIMORE, Md., March 25.—Ragged leiding, together with Pieper's wildness at critical moments, caused the defeat Johns Hopkins this afternoon at the hands of Pennsylvania, by a score of 10 The result of the game was never for a moment in doubt. Sayer, one of Penn's second string pitchers, was used in the box, and al-though the Black and Blue got eleven hits off him he struck out fifteen men. The winners reached Pieper only nine times, but two of these were for three acks and one for a complete circuit. sixth and ninth innings turned what should have been two sure outs into third base gifts. The score: third base girts.
